DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-7 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter as follows. Claim(s) 1-7 define a "data carrier" with descriptive material. While "functional descriptive material" may be claimed as a statutory product (i.e., a "manufacture") when embodied on a tangible computer readable medium, a "data carrier" embodying that same functional descriptive material is neither a process nor a product (i.e., a tangible "thing") and therefore does not fall within one of the four statutory classes of § 101. Rather, "signal" is a form of energy, in the absence of any physical structure or tangible material.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being unpatentable by Graunke et al (US 5,991,399).

[claim 1]

In regard to Claim 1, Graunke et al discloses a communication method via a network between a recording and/or reproducing device able to read a data carrier, and a first remote unit comprising additional data for the data carrier (Figure 2), said method comprising the steps of:

- detecting the presence of the data carrier in the recording and/or reproducing device and authenticating said data carrier, said steps being performed by a trusted recording and/or reproducing device (Figure 2 shows the detecting the presence of the data carrier as further described in Column 6 Lines 18-67);
- authenticating a trusted recording and/or reproducing device, said step being performed by a second remote unit and being able to make the trusted recording and/or reproducing device access the additional data (Column 8 Lines 33-60 describes authenticating the reproducing device for accessing the additional information).

[claim 2]

In regard to Claim 2, Graunke et al discloses a communication system comprising a recording and/or reproducing device able to read a data carrier, a first remote unit comprising additional data for the data carrier, and a second remote unit able to authenticate a trusted recording and/or reproducing device and to make the trusted recording and/or reproducing device access the additional data, a trusted recording and/or reproducing device being able to detect the presence of the data carrier in the recording and/or reproducing device and to authenticate said data carrier, said device and units communicating via a network (Figure 2 shows the reproducing of the data as described in Column 6 Lines 18-67. Furthermore, the authenticating the data as described in Column 8 Lines 33-60 determines the device can be trusted).

[claim 3]

In regard to Claim 3, Graunke et al discloses a communication system which comprises a third remote unit and wherein the second remote unit is managed by a manufacturer of recording and/or reproducing devices said third remote unit communicating directly with second remote units and with first remote units via the network (Figure 2 shows the system as further described in Column 6 Lines 18-67 through Column 7 Lines 1-57).

[claim 4]

In regard to Claim 4, Graunke et al discloses communication system wherein the second remote unit is adapted to communicate directly with recording and/or reproducing devices and with first remote units via the network (Figure 2).

[claim 5]

In regard to Claim 5, Graunke et al discloses a communication system wherein the second remote unit and the first remote unit are the same entity (Figure 2).

[claim 6]

In regard to Claim 6, Graunke et al discloses a remote unit for communicating with a recording and/or reproducing device able to read a data carrier (Figure 2), the remote unit comprising:

- means for authenticating a trusted recording and/or reproducing device, a trusted recording and/or reproducing device being able to detect the presence of the data carrier in the recording and/or reproducing device and to authenticate said data carrier (Column 8 Lines 33-60 describes the authenticating of devices), and

- means for enabling the trusted recording and/or reproducing device to access additional data corresponding to the data carrier (Column 8 Lines 61-67 and Column 9 Lines 1-16 describes enabling the system).

[claim 7]

In regard to Claim 7, Graunke et al discloses a recording and/or reproducing device able to read a data carrier, to communicate with a first remote unit comprising additional data for the data carrier, and to communicate with a second remote unit able to authenticate the recording and/or reproducing device, said device comprising means for detecting the presence of the data carrier in the recording and/or reproducing device and means for authenticating said data carrier (Figure 2 shows the system as described in Column 6 Lines 18-67 and described in Column 8 Lines 33-60).

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
